

EU INDUSTRY DAYS 2021

The 2021 edition of EU Industry Days focuses on opportunities. Amid the accelerated transformation and the changing global competitive landscape, the European industrial strategy builds a business case for greener, more digital and resilient industry. It provides tools to support our industrial ecosystems in this transformation and reinforce their global competitiveness. At the same time, it replies to Europe's societal call to create new quality jobs while respecting planetary boundaries.

Since the first edition in 2017, the EU Industry Days established themselves as the European Commission's main platform for an open stakeholder dialogue and discussion on industry. In 2021 we go fully digital. And bigger, as this edition will encompass even more various views and opinions in panel discussions, keynote speeches, networking opportunities, digital exposition, podcast and many exciting announcements concerning various opportunities offered by the industrial transition.

The 2021 EU Industry Days will take place in a special context. We want the next 10 years to be Europe's digital decade. And the new 2030 target for emission reduction of at least 55% to bring significant opportunities for our companies. The COVID pandemic has disrupted both the economic and social reality. But Europe will not divert from the green and digital direction, but rather accelerate the transformation using the ongoing recovery efforts. The main question we want to ask is how to use this crisis as a unique opportunity to rethink our economic, social and industrial reality. As a catalyst for change and new growth opportunities.

We are the Next Generation EU

Young Europeans are keen to take control of their lives and engage with and support others. Yet in the current context many face uncertainties about their future, as a result of technological change, demographic trends, discrimination, social exclusion, fake news and populism with yet unknown effects on jobs, skills or the way our democracies work. With the current COVID contest, more than ever, they need to be resilient and able to adapt to these challenges. In today's interconnected world, many young people are concerned about global issues such as climate change or peace and security. Still many are able to turn these challenges into opportunities, for them and for others. They represent new, fresh thinking, and new ways to do things: create business, bring added value to the society and to the planet.

10:35-12:00	Plenary session: Lesson learnt from COVID crisis? Resilience through increasing Europe’s strategic capacity European industry benefits from the integration in global value chains. We need to ensure open and undistorted access to international markets and the free flow of exports and imports that our industry and citizens benefit from, but the COVID19 crisis has shown certain vulnerabilities of global value chains. Increasing resilience and ensuring the provision of goods and services can mean diversification of sourcing, stronger alliances with like-minded partners, and, in some cases, reinforcing production capacities in Europe. Investing in strategically important future technologies and infrastructures is essential to improve the resilience of our industrial ecosystems. This panel will discuss how to implement this approach in practice. Speakers: Morena Bernadini, Vice President Strategy and Executive Committee member of Ariane Group Peter Wennink, President and CEO of ASML Bernd Schäfer, CEO, EIT RawMaterials Antti Vasara, President and CEO of the Finish research institute VTT and President of EARTO Samia Nehme, Vice President Chemicals Europe and Africa, Global Excellence and Product Stewardship, Shell Chemicals Europe

14:05-15:35	Plenary session: What kind of a digital future we want As we stand at the start of a new decade, and look ahead to that digital future, the one thing we can say for sure is that none of us knows exactly how technology is about to change our lives. That's partly because the digital world is so innovative – and innovation is uncertain by its very nature. However, as shown by recent Digital Services Act and the Digital Markets Acts, the digital future will be powerfully shaped by our own choices and actions. That includes issues such as use of data while respecting democratic access to business opportunities, research and development for digital technologies driven by a human-centric approach and social innovation. And how European model could fit between the Titans – US/China.
